In this course for all teachers K-12, we will draw upon the work of two noted educator/writers, Parker Palmer, and researcher/author, Brene Brown, to help participants explore what may be getting in the way of being fully themselves. You will learn steps that you can take to reclaim your personal power. A choice of Brene Brown books will run less than $15 used on Amazon.

LEARNING OUTCOMES: Upon completion of this course, participants will have:

4. Developed a personal commitment and plan that becomes part of the daily walk.
5. Woven positive brain changes into your own habits and thinking.

- Teleconferences or live meetings are acceptable. A good videoconference option is Zoom (<https://zoom.us/>).
- Each participant must attend at least 75% of the group meetings (a minimum of 3 of 4 meetings).

You must complete your introduction before moving on to other assignments.

In other words, in what ways would you like to be different in the context of this subject matter.

Assignment #2: MOVING FROM SHAME TO VULNERABILITY

- From years of sociological research, author and lecturer, Brene Brown, discusses the core elements in one's ability to stand up for oneself and become more of who you are.
- Watch the following two videos by Brene Brown.

Listening to Shame

<https://www.youtube.com/embed/psN1DORYYV0?autoplay=1&controls=1&showinfo=0>

The Power of Vulnerability

- In 500+ words, describe what aspects of her talk spoke most loudly to you and why. Write about an episode or encounter from your past that reflects some of what Brown is talking about.

Assignment #3: FROM THE DIVIDED LIFE TO COURAGE

- We often do not express who we are for fear of other's response – shaming, exclusion, criticism and many other forms of social isolation.
- View Parker Palmer's video in which he talks about the divided life.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=gCvIZpMo8aY&t=5s>

<https://www.youtube.com/embed/gCvIZpMo8aY?autoplay=1&controls=1&showinfo=0>

- Listen to the podcast in which Palmer and others talk about the five kinds of courage in our lives.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=WB0_osVjZq0

https://www.youtube.com/embed/WB0_osVjZq0?autoplay=1&controls=1&showinfo=0

- Conduct an experiment involving a conversation with a colleague, spouse/partner, at a school or other meeting place in which you have a pad of paper and pen. As you listen make note of all your thoughts or feelings.
- Make two columns with a dividing line down the center. Note what you thought and also said in the left-hand column, and in the right column what you thought but did not say.
- Then in 500 + words, describe a) What you learned about yourself from the conversation experiment; b) Describe an important instance from the past in which you wish you had spoken your true mind; c) What aspects of Parker Palmer's talks did you most identify with and why?

Assignment #4: COMPARING OURSELVES TO OTHERS & BEYOND

Comparing our self to others is rarely a fruitful habit and is more likely a sign of insecurity undermining our appreciation and acceptance of our gifts and who we really are. Signs of this habit include jealousy, unwarranted criticism, gossiping about another, feeling intimidated by another or having a sense of superiority. Any of the above can lead to conflict and social isolation and acts as a damper on spiritual development.

The first step is to become aware and take ownership for our self-comparing.

- Read "The Perils of Comparing Ourselves to Others"
- <https://www.psychologytoday.com/us/blog/in-love-and-war/201607/the-perils-comparing-ourselves-others>
- Read "A Helpful Guide to Stop Comparing Yourself to Others" <https://www.becomingminimalist.com/compare-less/>
- The second step is to go beyond self-comparison to joyful celebration of others along the way, clearly seeing and embracing yourself. In the Buddhist concept of loving kindness and sympathetic joy, one has or develops an ease and caring with oneself and an authentic joy in the talents and well being of another. This habit tends to lessen the habit of caring for others.
- <https://buddhisttemple.ca/practicing-metta-mudita/>
- In 250+ words explain the practice of gratitude and giving of oneself and others loving kindness.

Assignment #5: BEING PRESENT TO OURSELVES AND OTHERS

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0CSSwgjXmpo&t=32s>
